BEING a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cts. Address, DR. "Stonewall Jackson's Way" was written at Oakland, Allegheny county, Maryland, almost within hearing of the guns of Antietam. About ten days after that battle it first appeared in print in the columns of the Baltimore Republican (by the author,) headed: "Found on the body of a Sergeant of the Old Stonewall Brigade, Killed at Winchester." The original copy had dropped from his pocket in the heart of the Federal encampment at Antietam, he being then special correspondent of a

Northern journal. Taken from the Republican, the song was at once set to music, and published simultaneously by two music dealers in Baltimore, but with different airs, The one to which it was popularly sung throughout Virginia, and especially in the Confederate army in the Valley, was composed by young Frederick Benteen, a redeath was not only a public but a private caught the tune as eagerly as they had that of "My Maryland;" but their enthuof the reigning provost-marshal, who seized and burned the sheets, destroyed the plates, and cauterized the wound in-the music sellers of the city. But the song had already gone through "the lines." It was reprinted in Richmond, and gaily sung by every woman and child in the Valley of Virginia, especially by the admirers of General Jeb Stnart, with whom it was a favorite ditty. Once the author, in passing alone and by night from General Breckinridge's army (then lying near Woodstock) to Richmond, was arrested at Gordonsville as a Federal spy. and while guarded by two centries in the public room of an inn was recognized by a stranger as "the man who wrote Stonewall Jackson's Way.'"

In every printed collection of the poems and songs of the war, this one has been awarded a prominent place, and almost every compiler has sought for information concerning its origin and authorship. At characteristic exploits of its hero; and "Stonewall Jackson's Way" appeared at the head of reports and editorials in the

As an example of the interest it aroused we may mention that Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, in his lively lecture on the "Songs of the War," spoke of "Stonewall Jackson's Way" as by far the best song that had come from the rebel side. Another writer cites it as a fine example of the true and stirring ballad, comparing it with Whittier's well-known "Barbara Freitchie." A leading New York journal once characterized it as "a ballad that will live as long as the war is remembered;" and Putnam's Monthly has twice pointed to it as a genuine inspiration. Nor has its fame been confined to this country. A literary nobleman of England wrote to an American poet, requesting him to procure, if possible, an autograph copy of the song. mously, except in Miss appeared anonytion, published in Baltimore; by her it is erroneously ascribed to one "DeRivivere." Of course, its text, by frequent reprinting, has suffered much damage at the hands of printers' proof readers, with the exception of the original draft in the old Republican, and a copy furnished long afterwards by the New York Round Table, the one here given, is the only correct copy ever printed. In Virginia the authorship has commonly been attributed to a very uncertain "lady." The legitimate parent of the song is a well-known journalist and magazine writer, formerly of Baltimore, whose name is familiar to the readers of the Atlantic Monthly; and many ladies and gentlemen of that city are cognizant of the facts here first made public, setting forth the true story of "Stonewall Jackson's Way."

STONEWALL JACKSON'S WAY. Come, stack arms, men! Pile on the rails, Stir up the camp-fire bright! No matter if the canteen fails— We'll make a roaring night. Here Shenandoah brawls along, There burly Blue Ridge echoes strong, To swell the brigade's rousing song, Of Stonewall Jackson's way.

We see him now; the queer, slouched hat Cocked o'er his eye askew : The shrewd, dry smile ; the speech so pat, So calm, so blunt, so true! The 'cute old Elder knows them well ; Says he, "That's Banks—he's fond of shell; Lord save his soul! We'll give him".—Well! That's Stonewall Jackson's way. Silence! Ground arms! Kneel all!
